MR. ADAMS' SPEECH.

Charles Francis Adams made his debut in the House to-day, and though the attendance was thin when he opened, no announcement of his purpose having been made, the benches of both sides were filled in a few minutes, and the gallories exhibited a corresponding interest. His speech was a philosophical, luminous and most attractive review of the slavery question, or rather the problem of the representation with of its "peculiar institution." Embarrassment in the regular branch of Congress, the influences it commanded in the Cabinet, in the Supreme Court and every other department of the Government. He said the negro would not go out, and could he be put out, till this great problem was solved.

He then traced the existence and necessity of the Republican party, proving it to be merely defensive, and intended to sustain the principles of the fathers, and to vindicate those contained in the Declaration of Independence, which he showed were not limited to any color, but addressed to the rights of mankind.

In his opinion there could be no compromise till these principles were brought back and the Government restored to its honored practices. Change and reform were imperatively required, and freedom must be restored to the place from which it had been deposed.

The corruptions and abuses which had become so common should be arrested, or greater calamities would follow. He examined the so-called remedy of secession suggested by others, and demonstrated its folly, feebleness, and impracticability.

Mr. Adams left the undivided attention of the House throughout, without a murmur, and elicited general praise for the elevated tone and candid spirit in which the subject was discussed. Those who, like myself, were familiar with his father's style of speaking, were struck by the similarity of manner, voice, and gesticulation, and particularly with the nervous energy which seemed to be common to both. It was evidently a long and careful effort, and certainly has made his mark on the House.

REJECTION OF THE MEXICAN TREATY.

The Senate took action to-day on the Mexican treaty. There was at earnest debate involving the entire question. Several amendments were voted on and rejected, including those of Mr. Simmons. The treaty was then unanimously approved; by some of the Republicans who were opposed to the treaty in its original form. The treaty was finally rejected by a large majority. The vote was received with disappointment as well as surprise, as the indications during the few weeks past were favorable to its ratification.

Pending the question to reconsider the vote by which the treaty was rejected, Senators will have an opportunity more closely to consider the effect of their action of to-day. It is supposed the rejection of the Mexican treaty by the votes of nearly all the Republican Senators, had not a little influence in the rejection of the Mexican treaty by the votes of the Democrats. An inefficient excuse was made for the rejection of secrecy, and hence the exact state of the question cannot particularly be stated.

[By the by no one noticed to-day, Hunter was not present. He is dead.]

THE CENTRAL AMERICAN TREATIES.

There was an animated discussion on the Central American treaties, and it probable that both Nicaragua will be carried without material loss, and that with Honduras as it stands.

Another Forgery.

The Toledo Blade well exposes another forgery which has originated in the N. Y. Herald. That journal has said that in a speech in 1848, Mr. Lincoln used the following language:

"Suppose it to be the fact that Kentucky will not go for Taylor, I ask you candidly what reason we are to infer that she will go for Cass? Is it because Cass was born in Kentucky, and Taylor was not? Is it because Cass has been a long time before the public, and Taylor has not? Is it because Cass has been a member of Congress, and Taylor has not? Is it because Cass has been a member of the Cabinet, and Taylor has not? Is it because Cass has been a Senator, and Taylor has not? Is it because Cass has been a military hero, and Taylor has not? Is it because Cass is a politician, and Taylor is not? Is it because Cass is a writer, and Taylor is not? Is it because Cass is a large slaveholder, and Taylor is not? Is it because Cass is a friend of the present Administration, and Taylor is not? Is it because Cass is a Democrat, and Taylor is not? Is it because Cass is a Democrat, and Taylor is not? Is it because Cass is a Democrat

Dyspepsia.—This is a very distressing complaint, and gives the patient more suffering than almost any other disease; in fact it is a combination of that complaint in one. The symptoms are numerous, and of the most distressing nature. Sick headache, distress after eating, sour stomach, heartburn, loss of appetite, nausea, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, pain in the region of the liver, and a general prostration of the whole system. All of these symptoms are sometimes present in a case of dyspepsia, and many more equally as distressing. The first symptoms—indigestion, flatulency, heartburn, sick headache, etc., if neglected, or unskillfully treated, will finally undermine the constitution, and cause a premature grave.
